Psychological testing is the administration of psychological tests, which are designed to be "an objective and standardized measure of a sample of behavior". The term sample of behavior refers to an individual's performance on tasks that have usually been prescribed beforehand. The samples of behavior that make up a paper-and-pencil test, the most common type of test, are a series of items.

Psychology is the science of behavior and mind, including conscious and unconscious phenomena, as well as feeling and thought. It is an academic discipline of immense scope and diverse interests that, when taken together, seek an understanding of the emergent properties of brains, and all the variety of epiphenomena they manifest. As a social science it aims to understand individuals and groups ...

Test control is about guiding and corrective actions to try to achieve the best possible outcome for the project. The specific guiding actions depend on what we are trying to control. Let us take few hypothetical examples: A portion of the software under test will be delivered late but market conditions dictate that we cannot change the release date.
